Continuing Professional Development Program

Victorian Private Security Business Licence

Where a business licence holder becomes a member of an approved security industry association for the purposes of sub section 26(3) of the Private Security Act 2004, then the following model to develop professional competence is to be used by the association:

- The potential member must be assessed as having extensive experience (minimum of 5 years) in the security industry that demonstrates the person is competent to operate a security business (provision of a detailed curriculum vitae would be required);

AND

- To maintain membership with the approved Security Industry Organisation the business licence holder engages in a continuing professional development (CPD) program and must accumulate 12 “CPD points” each year in which a security business licence is held.

SPAAL’s Continuing Professional Development (CPD) program is designed to ensure members attain and maintain increased skills and knowledge for consistent professionalism within the security industry.

CPD training and activities that qualify for points

- Seminar, workshop, lecture, conference, discussion group, multimedia or website based program, or the research and preparation of an article published in a Security Publication or a Security Industry related article in a non Security publication or a combination of those activities;

- Must be of significant intellectual or practical content and must deal primarily with matters related to the broad practice of Security & Security Management;

- Conducted by persons who are qualified or considered experts by practical or academic experience in their field of discussion in the subject covered;

- Must extend the member’s knowledge and skills in areas that are relevant to the member’s security industry needs.

- Members who successfully complete a Certificate IV, Diploma or above will be deemed to have completed 8 CPD points in that year.

- The preparation and/or presentation of material by a member, to be used in a course of continuing professional development to members and/or to other professionals and/or to other persons including Security Officers, is continuing professional development approved by SPAAL. However, in any CPD year a member may not claim more than five CPD points for the preparation and/or presentation of material to be used in such a course of continuing professional development.
